Who is Logikos Inc.?

Logikos is a leading custom software design, development, test, and systems integration company. Logikos has been in business to help create successful products and systems for clients since 1978, working with mid-range to Fortune 500 companies throughout the world. The company’s focus is to provide high-quality, unique solutions to improve their customers' products and their related productivity and efficiency.

Logikos is not just another software design company; it is considered to be a software specialist that believes in understanding and partnering with clients to offer the highest-quality, highest-value software solutions. The company’s state-of-the-art software testing facilities ensure that the programs developed are reliable and deliver the desired results.

The most valuable asset at Logikos is its staff. Because of this highly qualified professional engineering staff, Logikos has seen over 30 years of success. Continued success comes from the challenges and new opportunities that are delivered from a great client-base. With more than 60 employees (more than 50 of them engineers), Logikos offers full life-cycle custom software programming services, from conception through development and implementation.

Today's software programs are often intricate and complex, including multi-platform environments. Logikos doesn’t focus on simply providing excellent software—it has to be the right software to achieve specific business goals.
What can Logikos provide for your company? The highly qualified and certified engineering staff has a mastery of the latest software technology. They have the business insight and experience necessary to understand your business and successfully develop products that work to increase your success—real value with the right technology, delivered through the optimal process as directed by an extensive Quality Management System.

With an embedded development lab and extensive desktop and Internet development environment, Logikos can complete an entire company’s project from start to finish, within their facility.

Logikos has delivered custom software applications to a wide range of industries such as:

- Automotive
- Medical
- Manufacturing/retail systems
- Consumer electronics
- Defense

IPFW Career Services is fortunate and proud to have a company such as Logikos Inc. as a corporate partner! As you have read here, they possess extensive knowledge and mastery of their field; but most importantly, they have a great feel for customer service. Knowledge with an attention to the customer’s needs makes Logikos one of the prime organizations of our region.