Tell me about any life experiences you might have had that would help in this particular field.” It's a hard question. It Is. Kinda stumbled on my words a little bit, but I guess that all happens with the nervousness. I think what she might have been able to do a little better is make her skills or at least try to make her skills from her previous jobs and from her internships and her college work apply to the position that was open.	(Susan) (Natasha) (Susan)

“I have here a if you wanna take a look here, my portfolio. “We had to do an organization, had to make a brochure, direction sheets... press releases, so” “She did bring some writing samples and a notebook which was full of things that she had done which I thought was excellent”. “Talk to me about what you consider your strengths and weaknesses... I take criticism very well... Definitely looking to grow... and wanting to be here I think is a plus for me..I’m all about being on time. My weaknesses probably would be... sigh... let’s see...” A lot of questions that were kind of open-ended, you know, your type of experience and how can you relate what you did to this company and how can you help this company. Thank you for coming in Natasha.	(Natasha) (Susan) (Natasha) (Natasha) (Susan) [GRAPHIC: Expect classic questions! Natasha, I think that you really presented well during the interview because you had great energy level. I loved the fact that you brought a portfolio or examples of your work. I think that’s fantastic. That’s something that all college students should begin to accumulate and put together.	(Susan)

I think you should rehearse in some cases some of your questions. I mean you know you're gonna get the strengths and weaknesses question, you know you're probably gonna get the skills question, you know you're gonna get the 'why did you apply for the job here' question. And so don't hesitate to practice that on your ride here or practice it the night before because the more you hear yourself answering those questions, the better they'll come out.
I think it's good to know what I should've said or what would have been a good time to say those things.	(Natasha)
What you want to do is impress that person enough so that you make it into the top ten or that you're the one that gets called back for the second interview.	(Natasha)
